

Challenging Stereotypes About Women in the Middle East

A Teacher Training Workshop for K-12 Educators

Sponsored by the University of Pennsylvania Middle East Center and the Pulitzer Center

August 14th, 2018, 4:30 pm - 7:30pm

HH223 Golkin Room

3417 Spruce St, Philadelphia, PA, 19104

This workshop is designed to provide professional development training to K-12 educators by assisting them in incorporating media analysis in their curricula, specifically focusing on the stereotyping of women in the Middle East. It will be hosted by journalist Emily Feldman and sponsored by the University of Pennsylvania Middle East Center and the Pulitzer Center. This workshop will provide Act 48 credit. Dinner will be provided.

Emily Feldman (pictured left) is a journalist writing about migration, security and human rights. Her work has appeared in Newsweek, The New Yorker Online, Politico EU, The Daily Beast among other publications. She was based in Istanbul from 2013 until 2017, covering the rise and fall of ISIS. She is currently based in Washington, D.C.