

Clothes need to start helping the environment

I have noticed that we do not use clothing materials that help everything in the world. Such as animals, people, landfills, and much more. These things are not safe and if we want to keep humankind safe we need to talk about this. This is an very important underreported story.

Do I need to explain what an underreported story is?

An underreported story is a story that people should know because it's important to society. For example, the couple that made interracial marriage legal. The story is how some changes in society were made. This shows that society could change for the better if they knew about the underreported stories.

We need to study this underreported story

Clothes need to be made to help the environment.

For example, most clothes are made out of cotton that is not recycled. That is telling us that we are killing many sheep and we all need animals to survive.

Another example is that some clothes are made out of leather.

Using leather is very harmful, we get it from cows and killing them we won't be able to get milk and cheese.

Fast fashion is not okay

Another thing we need to talk about is fast fashion because it is becoming unsafe for so many people.

For example, people shop so much and when they throw away big piles of clothes those clothes end up in landfills. Landfills full up and take up so much room that the toxic from it will run through neighboring neighborhoods. That shows that this is very harmful to people and everyone. Toxic could severely damage someone's lungs or hurt them very badly. We need to stop shopping like that and be more reasonable about what clothes we buy.

How could we spread this story and many others?

We could use social media to spread this story.

Let's use Tiktok as an example. There are over millions of users on Tiktok. Those people could easily notice a video you post about this or any underreported story. Tiktok allows important things that are going on around the world and that keep us safe on many peoples For You Pages.

This shows us that these stories could most likely be noticed on huge platforms because others and the platform would support it.
