The Europeans going to the new world

Did you know that in 1492 the Europeans landed in the new world that what they called America at that time also they were apart of the Columbian Exchange.

Who the Europeans met

One day the Europeans met the Taino and the Indigenous but in the beginning of 1493 the Europeans took the Taino people and made them slaves so the Europeans thought that now they can be happy now they have slaves.

How there population went up

While the Europeans was enslaving people the Europeans made them grow crops for them and the Europeans will sell them for money, more crops, and gold. The Europeans also sold there bodies in the Columbian Exchange. When you sell bodies you get a lot of stuff and make your population go up, so by the Europeans selling the bodies [of Indigenous people]that got a lot of money and gold.

The war between the Indigenous people and the Europeans people

Back in 1622 the Europeans was in a war with the Indigenous people because the Europeans wanted more land so the Europeans fought for the Indigenous people land.

Crops that the Europeans had

The Europeans had a lot of crops such as bananas, citrus fruits, apple, onions, carrots, grapes, tomatoes, pineapple, vanilla, this shows some food that they got from new world/America.
