

Q4 - End of Week EXIT PASS

Find the column for YOUR CLASS. (1) Begin your post with your NAME. (2) REFLECT on what you learned about perspective this week. Partner your comment with an image or meme. (3) Respond to others through posts in other classes and leave comments, likes, etc. NO NAME=NO CREDIT! (You can click on your post to edit and add your name if you forget) :D

Period 1

Perspectives and Human

Connections? Share the name of the stories as part of your response.

* DON'T FORGET to post & reply

👍 2 🗨️ 0

11 comments

Anonymous 1mo

Lavay: The Pulitzer stories that I chose such as Alone in a Pandemic and a Teenager starting over in Canada shed light on perspectives and human connections. Alone in a pandemic really gave the perspective of someone stuck in a pandemic and I feel that it was a story that many people can relate to. A Teenager Starting over in Canada is also something that shed light on real life situations that very few people go through, but it also gives a voice to those who have went through the same thing.

Anonymous 1mo

Mikahala- The Pulitzer stories I chose, Alone in the pandemic and Intersex, and proud shed light on perspectives and human connections. Alone in the pandemic gave the perspective that this pandemic has divided people and had put people in hard and difficult places but also I feel that others who are suffering during to this pandemic can relate what Jose Montes is going through. Intersex, and Proud gave the perspective that it's okay to be identify as intersex or transgender and it doesn't matter what others think but its hard to get the love and support you need.

Period TWO

How did the Pulitzer Center stories you chose shed light on Perspectives and Human Connections? Share the name of the stories as part of your response.

* DON'T FORGET to post & reply

👍 1 🗨️ 0

29 comments

Kaitlin 1mo

Kaitlin I chose to read the Pulitzer stories "Beijing's Rat Tribe: The Chinese Dream Goes Underground" and "Life After Deportation." These stories shed light on perspectives and human connections through photographic evidence and interviews with people who have experienced these events, such as Wei Kuan and the Valdez family. Link to image:

https://pulitzercenter.org/sites/default/files/styles/1340x815_scale/public/04-07-15/highres_00113390_1.jpg?itok=qk0neN5x

Anonymous 1mo

Mauggie The Pulitzer stories I chose to read were "Intersex, and Proud" and "Women on the Move." These two stories shed light on perspectives and human connections by involving the multiple point of views from diverse groups of people. For example, in "Intersex, and Proud", we got perspectives on Tatenda, her parents, and another intersex person.

Period 5

Edith Middleton 1mo

WEEK 6 (26-30)

How did the Pulitzer Center stories you chose shed light on Perspectives and Human Connections? Share the name of the stories as part of your response.

* DON'T FORGET to post & reply

👍 2 🗨️ 0

3 comments

Peter 1mo

Peter The Pulitzer Center stories shed light because in the article "alone in a pandemic", it showed a different perspective about the pandemic, and in the story "intersex, and proud", it showed unique perspective about someone who is intersex and their difficulties.

Anonymous 1mo

Katia- I chose to read the story about COVID, and the boy being alone. I enjoyed reading it because it had real life events going on

Josue 16d

I chose to read the story Intersex and Proud, and I don't remember the other one. I read it because I thought it would be interesting.

Edith Middleton 2mo

WEEK 5 (Apr 19-23)

Period 6

WEEK 6 (26-30)

How did the Pulitzer Center stories you chose shed light on Perspectives and Human Connections? Share the name of the stories as part of your response.

* DON'T FORGET to post & reply

👍 1 🗨️ 0

11 comments

Anonymous 1mo

Jacelynn- What challenged me this week was getting in my assignments on time and what brought me joy this week was making money and bringing up my grades.

Edith Middleton 1mo

That's awesome @Jacelynn!

Anonymous 1mo

Drew I read about Beijing Rat Tribe: The Rat Tribe is just people who can not afford a place to stay or can not get a place for legal reasons. The above grounders think of them as gross dirty criminals. I wouldn't mind being apart of the Rat Tribe because that is a cool name.

Anonymous 1mo

keahi-i read about the one where the kid loses his family during a war and it shed light on the fact that war is a really horrible thing.

Anonymous 1mo

Drew I agree with keahi as war is a horrible thing.

Period 7

Anonymous 1mo

Summer- I read the Abby Dreams of Space and A Teenager Starting Over In Canada. These really brought light on how not everyone lives the same life and how not everyone is as lucky as we are. I also learned that even though we are very different we all can still bond together over things that make up our identity.

Anonymous 1mo

Kailen- I am reading timbuktu which takes place from the perspective of a dog. I learned more of how dogs see and interpret the world.

Anonymous 1mo

merrik- when I read alone in quarantine and starting over in canada it kind of just opened my eyes more to the fact that many people are probably going through that and almost dont judge a book by its cover but instead of judging its acting.

Anonymous 1mo

Summer- I agree with merrik and the saying "Don't Judge A Book By Its Cover"

Anonymous 1mo

Angeleie - The Pulitzer Center stories I chose were "Life After Deportation" and "Alone In a Pandemic". The story "Alone In a Pandemic" shed light on Perspectives and Human Connections because it showed how important human connection is. Despite Jose Montez living alone and spending a lot of time by himself, he still missed the outside world and his little conversations. It also shows how not everyone had the same experience as him during the pandemic.

Period 1

Anonymous 1mo
Mika- I agree with Lavay about her story perspective about a teenage starting over in Canada about a situation that very few people go through, but it also shows a light to those who have went through the same thing.

Jake 1mo
The two stories I chose were "Beijing's Rat Tribe, The Chinese dream goes underground" & "A Teenager Starting Over in Canada." The article about the Rat tribe I feel best sheds light on perspective, because these people that live in these underground homes get constantly grouped into this population of criminals and low life's but really they're hardworking people seeing their living conditions as temporary and "a good motivation." It really shows how bad it can be to believe in one perspective even if its the majority, it only shows what happens above ground rather than what happens below ground. :) I feel, "A Teenager Starting Over in Canada" best encompasses Human connection because the people of Canada opened up their country to Muslim refugees and has everything they need to help them out.

Jake 1mo
Mika REPLY- I agree with you this pandemic has divided us like a prokaryotic wall.

Anonymous 1mo
Trinity ~ The two stories I chosed

Period TWO

Anonymous 1mo
Mauggie Enriquez- Kaitlin, I think that it's so cool how they also involved photography to shed light on perspectives and human connections. Great job!

Kaitlin 1mo
Kaitlin ~~anonymous~~- Great job Mauggie! The articles you read sound very interesting!

Tiare 1mo
The Pulitzer stories I chose to read were "Abby dreams of Space" and "Alone in a Pandemic." These stories shed light on how we should be grateful for the things we have even in tough situations. They talked about a man living by himself who is still cheerful in this pandemic. The other story tells about a girl who lives in a small space but doesn't stop her from dreaming. Through these obstacles both of the people strive for the future.

Tiare 1mo
Kaitlin, I think that article you read sounds interesting about how the reporters used photographic connections in their stories.

Anonymous 1mo
Bri- I also read "Beijing's Rat Tribe: The Chinese Dream Goes Underground" and "Life After Deportation" and I agree that the photography included was very meaningful to the story because it provided an emotional depth to the stories because we can relate the story to these images.

Anonymous 1mo

Period 5

Edith Middleton 1mo

WEEK 6 (26-30)

How did the Pulitzer Center stories you chose shed light on Perspectives and Human Connections? Share the name of the stories as part of your response.

* DON'T FORGET to post & reply

👍 2 🗨️ 0

3 comments

Peter 1mo
Peter - The Pulitzer Center stories shed light because in the article "alone in a pandemic", it showed a different perspective about the pandemic, and in the story "intersex, and proud", it showed unique perspective about someone who is intersex and their difficulties.

Anonymous 1mo
Katia- I chose to read the story about COVID, and the boy being alone. I enjoyed reading it because it had real life events going on

Josue 16d
I chose to read the story Intersex and Proud, and I don't remember the other one. I read it because I thought it would be interesting.

Period 6

Anonymous 1mo
keahi- i like how drew wouldn't mind living with the rat tribe it seems pretty cool

Anonymous 1mo
Jaden- I watched the Abby dreams of space & The teenager living in Canada and honestly I'm just glad to be alive with electricity, water, food, a house and clothes.

Anonymous 1mo
Jaden- I agree with that it would be pretty cool to live with the rat tribe

Anonymous 1mo
Maggie- I watched the video of the boy from Syria moving to Canada and it goes to show that a lot of us don't really know or pay attention to what is going on in the world, watching the video made me think about a lot, and the stupid bombs and stupid america, that boy was very brave and very confident for someone who had their family taken away, and it brought me joy knowing he came out of it well.

Anonymous 1mo
Chloe- I read the one about COVID and him being alone and the other one I watched was about the Abby dreams. I really enjoyed both because both can show a bit of home and the very importance of going out and having friends.

Anonymous 1mo
Chloe- I like how there was many different kinds of stories shown like Drew's and Keahi's. I also love how they explained it a bit makes it very interesting to read.

Period 7

Connections because it showed how important human connection is. Despite Jose Montez living alone and spending a lot of time by himself, he still missed the outside world and his little conversations. It also shows how not everyone had the same experience as him during the pandemic.

Anonymous 1mo
Angeleie - I agree with Summer. Even if I didn't read those articles, I still believe her statement is true. About how not everyone lives the same life and even if we are all different we can still bond through common things.

Jeremiah 1mo
The stories that I read for the Pulitzer center gave me a vision on their life and how the struggle in some it also shows that everyone in the world struggles with something

Anonymous 1mo
Kamalu - The stories that I read/watched showed/taught me that there are many people out there going through hard times, so it makes me feel ashamed to think that I have it bad when there are so many people out there literally struggling. abby and Charlie. I agree with Jeremiah.

Anonymous 1mo
Keawe- I read Abby Dreams of Space. The story shared how sometimes families need to make sacrifices for the greater good. In Abby's case they moved to a confined apartment so Abby can have a good education.

Anonymous 1mo
Trinity - The two stories I chose was A teenager staring over in Canda and Abby dream of space. I think that the teenager staring over in Canda It was trying to say that even though you go through someing hard in you life you can all ways get better and start over. I think that the Addy deam of space i think that that was trying to say that not everyone has the space that other have and the things that other have and when see what other people have that you dont that makes you sad.

Anonymous 1mo
Trinity - I agree Jake the Teenager starting over in Canda was it was a good motavation to get through what he was going though and get better.

Anonymous 1mo
Lavay's Reply: Mikahala, I agree that the pandemic has put people through hardships and hard times. Alone in a Pandemic is a story that I feel someone many people can really connect to.

Anonymous 1mo
The Pulitzer stories that I chose were Alone in a Pandemic, and Abby Dreams of Space. Alone in a Pandemic really showed the perspective of how being alone in a pandemic can really change the way you do things, and how much more lonely you feel. In the other story I read, Abby Dreams of Space, shows another perspective that some may relate to like being crowded makes you want to be free and have your own space. Some may relate to and these two stories are like the opposites of each other because in one of the stories the person is alone and wants to be with others, while the other story is with a girl who is crowded in an apartment and wants to have her own space.

Anonymous 1mo
Jojo- I ended up reading the "She's Not a Boy", "We became Fragments", and the Bejing's Rat Tribe. I really appreciated the access to all of these articles, I found a lot of value in all of them. Those I read really put emphasis on the value of empathy, acceptance and refraining from snap judgements. I really felt the writers intent was really beautiful, and came across in a way that I felt I really got to know these people's stories.

Anonymous 1mo
Jojo- Katilin I'd like to read the one about the man alone in the pandemic, who is still cheerful- that must be one special person because I could never stay cheerful with prolonged isolation like that, I don't think many of us could.

Anonymous 1mo
Giullia- I read Abby Dreams of Space and Life after deportation. Reading these stories made me realize two things about perspective. 1. Perspective can completely change how you see something 2. Reading about other peoples lives and difficulties is really important because it adds a new perspective that you can apply to your own life, weather it be feeling grateful for what you have, or learning how to see things differently to solve a problem.

Anonymous 1mo
Giullia- to Jojo, I am also really glad we were able to read these stories it was very valuable.

Anonymous 1mo
Nadia- I read "Intersex and Proud" and "Life After Deportation." These stories shed light on experiences that are very different from what we are used to. It was interesting to learn about people and groups like the ones mentioned in the articles because they really broadened my view on the world. After reading these stories, I understood the value of connections and how important they can be in both a professional and supportive sense.

Anonymous 1mo
Nadia- I believe Giullia is right about the importance of learning about other people's lives. It helps us become more understanding and grateful for what we have.

Anonymous 1mo
Oakley- The two IR stories I read were really eye opening. The first story that I heard was "A teenager starting over in Canada". It helped me get a better meaning on what perspective really is. This boy had lost everything and everyone in his life. He chose to have a positive outlook on things. He could've sat around and moped all day for the rest of his life. No one would blame him. He decided to keep pushing and be the best person that he could be. The second story I read was "alone in a pandemic". This story helped me discover perspective in a different way. A man hadn't seen his family for a long time, and was having a hard time paying his rent and staying in the place he lived. He decided to get outside and look on the brighter side of things. I realized that my life isn't so bad and I should stop feeling so sorry for myself all the time.

Morena Danti 1mo
Morena Danti- For the Pulitzer Center stories I chose Abby Dreams of Space and Alone in a Pandemic. The first story, Abby Dreams of Space shed light on Perspective by showing others what it actually is for a child to migrate and for human connections is that there is a lot of child who really struggle. Them Alone in a Pandemic the perspective is also about this man Jose Montes who migrates from El Salvador and he is alone, and because he is old he can't no longer work. The human connection in this story is also how much people struggle with the pandemic that we all went through or people that migrate.

Morena Danti 1mo
Morena- To Guilia, I agree with you, for me read Abby Dreams of Space it made me realize me as a person that also migrate how grateful I am to all the things I have.

Anonymous 1mo
lourdes- The Pulitzer stories that I chose Alone in a Pandemic and Abby dreams of Space. Two very amazing stories. First I read about Abby Dreams of Space and I feel like that specific story can connect to many things. I feel like Abby can be relatable in a sort, I feel like that perspective was just a girl who needs space, and dreams of having a normal life. She sees others as better than her, she would see their houses and see how much space it has compared to hers. I feel like that was a good story and just a good eye-opener for people to be grateful for what they have. They other story I chose was Alone in a Pandemic. It gave a perspective that you can feel alone and you kind of are alone literally. And how difficult times could be in rough patches of life like these, and how people could relate to how Jose felt.