

Evaluate SDG Progress Graphic Organizer

Instructions: Our World in Data created a free SDG Tracker (<https://sdg-tracker.org>) where people can track and explore global and country-level progress towards each of the SDGs. This resource is kept up-to-date and presents the latest data across all SDGs. The tracker uses official statistics from the UN and other international organizations. Use the tracker to research global progress on ONE sustainable development goal.

Choose one of the following options to explore in a short essay (1-2 pages):

Option 1	Evaluate the progress of a particular country (any country of your choice)
Option 2	Evaluate the progress of a particular region (the Andean region in South America, Western Africa, Central Asia, etc.)
Option 3	Evaluate the progress of the country you reside in

Address and include the following in your paper:

How many targets and indicators has the UN defined for that particular SDG? Targets specify the goals and indicators are the metrics by which progress is tracked.
Identify and explain one target and one indicator in your paper.
How does the data look on the indicator you identified? Has there been any progress?
